

Warringal Conservation Society Kurth Kiln visit

Sunday 11 November 2018

The Warringal Conservation Society was formed in 1970, and has been continuously advocating for the green spaces of Banyule, as well as on state and national environmental issues. The group focus is on the wetlands adjacent to the Yarra River in Banyule.

The members hold a passion for restoring and conserving natural habitat and the ecological value of Warringal Parklands and Banyule Flats Reserve in Heidelberg/Viewbank/Rosanna. They can see birds and other wildlife returning, vibrant wetlands, and beautiful parkland for all to enjoy.

Twenty of their group visited Kurth Kiln on 11 November. After morning tea Alfred gave a talk about the history of Kurth Kiln. The group then looked at the kiln, the displays and huts of the Kurth Kiln Site.

After lunch, while a few members looked for birds, the others went for a walk along the Tomahawk Creek.

Before leaving Daphne Hards, President of the group, thanked the Friends of Kurth Kiln for their hospitality and presented them with two beautiful and informative books, "Beautiful Banyule" and "Birds in Heidelberg and Yarra Valley".
